Denver Business Journal continues its fifth year of honoring outstanding C-suite executives

The Denver Business Journal celebrates local top C-suite executives who are leaders in their industries demonstrating vital governance in their roles and commitment to furthering success at their company.

“Amanda’s unyielding expertise in her role is no surprise to us, so it’s a thrill to see her recognized for her leadership,” says Cory Kwarta, CEO of Swisslog Healthcare. “She’s the driving force behind the Swisslog Healthcare brand in North America and as The Journal recognizes her, they’re showing others in the field what success and leadership should look like.”

With more than 15 years of marketing leadership and countless hours of volunteer work, Costanzi’s efforts have resulted in many accomplishments, honors and publications. For the past several years, Costanzi has had the honor to of serving on the panel for Metropolitan State University of Denver’s Legal Marketing Course, where she delivers insights for students considering a career in legal marketing. Costanzi is also invited to speak every quarter to students at Arapahoe Community College about starting businesses.

“Amanda is a great business partner providing strategic insights and market knowledge that we are able to learn from and incorporate into our day-to-day business,” says Anthony Pugliese, Chief Commercial Officer of Medication Management at Swisslog Healthcare. “We benefit from her expertise as do our industry partners as she’s often called upon for her perspective and viewpoint.”

More recently, Costanzi has been invited to interview a second time in the MarTech Series following a successful initial interview earlier this year. These interviews, along with other recommendations and endorsements, are supporting evidence that Costanzi is a leader in her field and her community.

“I’m so grateful that I was even nominated for this award, so to be amongst this group of people who are recognized for expertise in their respective fields is truly an honor,” says Amanda Costanzi, Head of Marketing and Communications at Swisslog Healthcare. “I’m so grateful for this recognition as well as the unwavering support of my team and company.”

Along with other outstanding C-suite executives, Costanzi was honored at the Denver Business Journal C-Suite awards on September 21, 2022, at the Denver Art Museum's Sturm Pavilion. Read more
